Fross Zelnick partner Craig S. Mende recently contributed the chapter “When Copyright and Trademark Rights Overlap” to the 2nd Edition of Overlapping Intellectual Property Rights, published by Oxford University Press.

Authored by a diverse array of specialist practitioners and academics, the book presents a unique exploration of how overlapping intellectual property rights interplay, with each chapter centered around a distinct pair of intellectual property rights. The authors utilize hypothetical scenarios to examine both conceptual and practical complexities, providing practitioners with a comprehensive grasp of these overlaps.

While the focus primarily centers on UK, US, and European law, the book also includes comparative tables that outline overlapping rights in 17 countries globally, highlighting both commonalities and differences.
