

---

Kenner Parker Toys Inc. v. Rose Art Indus., Inc.

963 F.2d 350 (Fed. Cir. 1992)

In a frequently cited case that established the proposition that famous marks are entitled to strong protection, we successfully opposed competitor's application to register mark FUNDOUGH due to potential confusion with Parker's mark PLAY-DOH.More

963 F.2d 350 (Fed. Cir. 1992)

In a frequently cited case that established the proposition that famous marks are entitled to strong protection, we successfully opposed competitor's application to register mark FUNDOUGH due to potential confusion with Parker's mark PLAY-DOH.