Overview

“My trademark and copyright practice allows me the chance to solve problems that have real world implications for clients – I help protect iconic brands and build new brands.”

Kim Frumkin’s practice focuses on protecting clients’ rights and interests in their intellectual property. She works with clients across a variety of industries, including education, fashion, media and entertainment, and pharmaceuticals. Kim has experience in copyright, trademark, and unfair competition matters.

Kim has represented clients of all sizes in federal and state courts as well as in arbitrations. Prior to joining Fross Zelnick, Kim was an associate in the intellectual property litigation department of a leading New York law firm.
